Neighbors of the newly constructed Wal-Mart in Pass Christian resembled anything but a welcome wagon at Tuesday's public hearing.

The Board of Aldermen called the hearing to give residents an opportunity to voice their concerns about Wal-Mart's impact on traffic flow in the area.

Over 50 citizens, who filled chairs and lined the walls at City Hall, took that opportunity to point out potential problems such as speeding and safety. Several spoke out about the potential inconvenience of having to find alternate routes to and from their homes.

City officials say a fivemill tax hike - the second for Bay St. Louis in two years - probably will be needed to finance a $2 million general obligation bond they plan to issue next month.

City Council passed a non-binding resolution of intent to issue the bonds Tuesday night, as Mayor Eddie Favre asked. It would pay for a sweeping, citywide street resurfacing program, and associated minor drainage work if formally enacted next month.

Favre said if there's enough left over, the bond

The county got a new building official on Monday when Supervisors voted unanimously to hire Mickey Lagasse for the position. Lagasse will take over the job on June 1st.

Lagasse said he will continue the work of former employee Willie Gavney with an effort to make sure that zoning laws are enforced, that residential and commercial zoning boundaries are not crossed.

His main focus will be flood plain management, he said, with an emphasis on enforcing regulations that are already in place which regulate building in a flood plain. He will also work to move the county into the community rating system, he said. Waveland and Bay St. Louis already participate in the community rating system, which works to reduce the cost of flood insurance.

Lagasse said he plans to be proactive by seeking funding from available federal grants to help implement the policies of good flood plain management. Lagasse also plans to attend classes to prepare him for the job

Other than that he is not planning on making a lot of changes right away. Lagasse said.

"I want to benefit from the input and suggestions of long term employees," he said. The purpose of the project is to improve Texas Flat into a state highway connector. When the remaining approximately 12 miles of dirt and gravel road are paved it will also provide a new northern entrance to Stennis Space Center. at Mainline Rd., Clemens said.

The road will also provide easy access for many companies located at the Space Stennis to Center International Airport and it is anticipated that cargo

The portion of the road that is already paved will be widened about two feet, said Clemens to provide a 24 ft. wide roadway, but the look of that portion will not change much, he said. The road is now 22 ft. wide. The widening of this portion of the road will require the acquisition of additional right of ways from property owners, Clemens said, in a separate process.

Things are beginning to come back in the beach front area and that is great. Of course, there will be live entertainment, as Peoples Bank will sponsor Bobby Allison at 100 N. Beach Blvd.

There will be demonstrations at several of the area's businesses and it looks like it can be a fun time to browse

Providing the facilities gives an area the opportunity of offering different types of entertainment.

As an example, on March 9 and 10, the Champion Dodge Coast Motocross Gulf Championship will be held at the Hancock County Equine Facility and Livestock Arena, Kiln/DeLisle Road.

The event is a production of Southern and Kenny Bilbo Productions. Motocross competitors range in the ages of four to forty with classes for youth, amateur, and semi-pro divisions.

There is hardly a week that goes by that I do not see some type of Motocross competition on television, not that I watch it that much. Moreso, it was special because a Mississippi soldier had been one of his liberators.

He had been a corporal in the 932nd field artillerv unit, a part of Patton's army. The Battle of the Bulge was only a few months behind them.

It was more or less accidental that Burnham volunteered on April 29, 1945 to take a Jeep driver to check out the Dachau camp, some 10 miles away from him exactly 58 bivouacked. He had no idea of the unspeakable horror he would find inside.

Two or three Nazi soldiers near the camp gate "high-tailed it when they saw us coming," says Burnham, and "I went inside. What I saw just tore me up. Dead bodies were stacked up all over the place. And a few, I could see, were still alive...just skin and bones."

Amazingly, Gilbert Metz was one of those alive, and Burnham remembers taking down his name. "And the look on his face I will never forget," he adds.

In later years through newspaper articles when Burnham learned about Metz now living Mississippi, "that name, because of the New York Mets, came back to me." And that was when the two hooked up by telephone.

Burnham said after his shocking discovery inside Dachau he took notes on what he saw, "I could do nothing other than head back to my unit, report my findings so that a team of medics could go back and take over." As it was, it took several days longer for the camp and the survivors to be decontaminated before they could be removed.

Gilbert Metz' life is a complicated journey beginning from childhood in French Alsace-Lorraine before it was overrun by the Nazis in 1940 and all Jews had to flee for their lives.

Metz' family wound up in the French town of St. Die with Gilbert and his sister for three years, poetically, attending a Roman Catholic school before the family along with all other Jews in town were arrested in 1943 by the Gestapo and shipped off to concentration camps.

Shuffled from one death camp to another, somehow he staved alive, losing his mother and father to the Nazi gas chambers at Auschwitz along the way.

Couple choose to live with ALS

Dear Editor:

May is ALS Awareness Month, and we hope you'll take a few moments to give some thought to amyotrophic lateral sclerosis. If you're not very familiar with that disease name, we understand. We were only mildly aware of Lou Gehrig's disease until March 2001, when it hit our family like a sledge hammer, and Steven received a diagnosis of ALS at age 35.

That's the way ALS is. Scientists have some ideas about what causes it, but they don't know for sure, so it usually strikes out of the blue. It hits adults in the prime of life, and it can strike anyone.

ALS starts with generalized muscle weakness, and eventually leads to virtually complete paralysis. For most people, it progresses pretty rapidly, and it takes away the ability speak, then the capacity to breathe without assistance. The average survival is three to five years, though with newer respiratory equipment available, life expectancy is gradually increasing. ALS entered our lives just as Steven was enjoying the greatest potential for growth in his sales career in the telecommunications industry. He was looking forward to many years in his role as father of our now 5-year-old son, Christopher.

Needless to say, we initially struggled with what this diagnosis meant for our family's future. We've held on to a positive attitude, and every time we hear that prognosis of three to five years, we remind ourselves that no one really knows how long someone will live.

"I was just lucky," says the 74 year-old Metz. Even once taken for dead, his fellow prisoners in their typhus-ravaged barracks stripped him naked and tossed him out in the snow.

Trace the History of Mother's Day

The earliest Mother's Day celebrations can be traced back to the spring celebrations of ancient Greece in honor of Rhea, the Mother of the Gods, During the 1600s, England celebrated a day called "Mothering Sunday," on the fourth Sunday of Lent (the 40-day period leading up to "Mothering Easter). Sunday" honored the mothers of England.

During this time, many of England's poor worked as servants for the wealthy. As most jobs were located far from their homes, the servants would live at the houses of their employers. On Mothering Sunday, the servants would have the day off and were encouraged to return home and spend the day with their mothers. A special cake, called the mothering cake, was often brought along to provide a festive touch.

As Christianity continued to evolve throughout Europe, the celebration changed to honor the "Mother Church" - the spiritual power that gave the people life and protected them from harm. Over time the church festival blended with the Mothering Sunday celebration. People began honoring their mothers as well as the church.

In the United States, Mother's Day was first suggested in 1872 by Julia Ward Howe (who wrote the words to the "Battle Hymn of the Republic") as a day dedicated to peace. Howe would hold organized Mother's Day meetings in Boston, every year.

In 1907, Ana Jarvis, of Philadelphia, began a campaign to establish a national Mother's Day. Jarvis persuaded her mother's church in Grafton, West Virginia, to celebrate Mother's Day on the second anniversary of her mother's death, the second Sunday of May. By the next year, Mother's Day was celebrated also Philadelphia.

Ms. Jarvis and her supporters began to write to ministers, businessmen and politicians in their quest to establish a national Mother's Day. It was successful, and by 1911 Mother's Day was celebrated in almost every state. In 1914, President Woodrow Wilson made the official announcement proclaiming Mother's Day a national holiday that was to be held each year on the second Sunday of May.

While many countries celebrate ${f their}$ Mother's Days at different times throughout the year, like some countries, Denmark, Finland, Italy, Turkey, Australia Belgium, also celebrate Mother's Day on the second Sunday of May.

since last November, when council members balked at some of its provisions that had already been agreed to by the other entities involved: Hancock County, Waveland, the county Water and Sewer Board, and officials of Kiln and Pearlington. Public officials had thought the pact would sail through Bay St. Louis last year, but it came under scrutiny and attack by members of council.

Tuesday, its revised provisions passed in a four-one vote. The new contract, between the city and the sewer district, contains many of the revisions that the city had sought.

Significantly, the Board of Supervisors has agreed to assume liability that may pile up if wastewater officials in the unincorporated areas can't pay their bills to the district. One new agreement notes that the county. and the cities of Waveland and Bay St. Louis, have broad taxing authority to insure their obligations will

. But the unincorporated area's sewer districts don't have similar taxing power, and could have left Bay St. Louis vulnerable for part of those payments. The Board of Supervisors' new guarantee fixes that problem, officials say.

One other major sticking point for Bay St. Louis had been a provision that allows the wastewater district's up to $350,000 at a time without asking the cities and county for special approval. Bay St. Louis wanted that number lowered to $200,000.

Negotiations on that point, however, failed to budge the other officials involved. The $350,000 cap stuck in the contract. Ward 1 council member Doug Seal balked when he learned that provision remained.

"We would like to know when money is spent," said Seal, as he made a motion to defeat the contract proposal. At large council member William "Bill" Taylor seemed likewise upset, but said he would vote for the pact anyway.

As it stands, any expenditure over $350,000 will require not only unanimous votes by the three-member board of directors, but also a 2/3 approval by the governing bodies of the participating agencies.

The new contract also requires that all votes of the district board be unanimous to be approved. And City Council agreed to insist that all minutes of the board. including the docket of expenditures and "exhibits" supporting the votes, are sent to council monthly for review. Seal cast the lone dissenting vote. Taylor's motion to approve it stated:

"I move we pass it, with objections." The mayor was authorized to sign the pact, which runs until the year

In other matters, council agreed in principal to a new ordinance that would forbid residents and businesses from substituting propane gas service for the city's natural gas services. One resident, apparently upset over the city's gas rates, had a substitute, officials said. Mayor Eddie Fayre said the propane tank was installed illegally, because the work was done without a permit.

propane tank installed as a

Beyond safety concerns over such conversions, city officials say their gas system - a moneymaker in the Utility Department amounts to a monopoly that can't be breached. A similar rule applies to city water and sewer services.

In zoning matters, council took the unusual step of rezoning a tract on St. John Street, from C-2 (neighborhood commercial) to R-2 (two-family residential). Mary Alice Ladner sought the change, to make way for construction of four duplexes on her tract in the 500-block of the street. The city routinely grants zoning code exceptions and variances, but rarely changes the zoning classification of properties. In this case, officials agreed that the property abuts other residential property, and it's too far away from Highway 90 to function as a commercial plot. Council deferred action on a zoning code change that would limit fence heights to three feet, if built beyond the front line of a dwelling. Council asked the Planning and Zoning Commission to study that proposal further, saying it could create problems that hadn't been anticipated.

Council also deferred for study a proposed zoning code change allowing streamers on commercial properties, like car sales lots. Lacking a firm definition of "streamers," officials said the ordinance could create problems.

Council endorsed two other significant changes to the zoning ordinance. One will specify that formal site plan reviews are required for non-residential construction and development in R-3, C-1, C-2, C-3, industrial districts and within all unzoned areas. Council wants to include medical complex areas in the review process as well.

Another change will tighten the rules for "special exceptions" to the zoning ordinance, the customary way council allows deviations from the zoning code. Under the new rules, special exceptions will expire unless the particular project is completed within six months after a building permit is obtained. The sixmonth rule also will apply to variances approved for certain projects.

The changes will be put in final code form before adoption by council.

Aside from resurfacing the city needs some minor associated drainage work, Favre said, such as replacing broken culverts that support residential driveways. If there is leftover money to allow it, the mayor and council also would like to see culverts laid in some ditches, to allow for construction of sidewalks over them.

The mayor promised an almost immediate start to the street work if council approves the bond issue next month — even before the city actually gets the bond proceeds. Rather than stretch the repayment over raises." Favre said, telling 15 or 20 years, he wants to retire the bonds in five to 7 about costing $400,000 a year. That's roughly the equivalent of five mills' city taxation.

He said the city should be able to resume its annual resurfacing program after that, keeping all city streets in good repair from now on, from regular tax collections and other city revenues. The city also needs to refurbish its four water towers, and build a new one. officials say. It's uncertain if the upcoming bond issue can cover those costs, how-

Bay St. Louis had a tax rate of 30.85 mills until 1993, when the opening of Casino Magic offered significant revenues for the city coffers. Council slashed taxes to five mills then. dividing that small income between the county library system and city parks and recreation purposes. Last year, the mayor asked for a 15-mill tax hike, citing increasing budget burdens. Council agreed only on a 5.5-mill increase, however, for the current fiscal year. Even that didn't give the city enough money, however, to finance a major capital improvement program - or employee raises. Those missed pay hikes remain on the table as a $200,000 possibility. "The employees have got to get ing and sales taxes will be excessive enough to cover the cost. "If not, we're looking at a tax increase for raises," the mayor said.

That comment brought sharp reaction from Ward 4 council member Bobby Compretta. He said when e was manager of the Winn Dixie, employees had to wait until business was sufficient to fund payroll hikes sometimes for years.

"If you're going to go up on taxes," Compretta said, "You've got to give the people something (tangible) in return." And council member Farve joked that the public reaction to raises wouldn't be nice. "You know what they're going to say about the employees: 'Well they don't do nothing anyway'."

The mayor retreated some on his remark that employees must get raises. Still, he said the city is seeing personnel turnovers in part due to non-competitive salaries. That's costly to the city, he said, particularly in the police department.

Wal-Mart -- traffic way after Wal-Mart opens. He suggested the council make Hayden a one-way. south bound street to avoid making traffic problems.

"We can live with Wal-Mart; we can accept it," Oden said. "Hayden is going to be the problem."

Another man suggested the whole situation was being overthought. He asked if anyone had considered having no entrance onto Hayden.

The idea, in fact, had been entertained. Pat Godley, a planning commissioner for the city. said Wal-Mart engineers had proposed an opening on Hayden, but claimed the opening was not vital.

Godley said the planning commission decided against the opening when presenting proposals to the Board of Aldermen. It was decided to have the main entrance off Highway 90, which called for the installation of a red light. To help discourage increased traffic on Hayden, a median was also installed on Highway 90 at the foot of the street.

Holiday Drive, located on the east side of the store, will be used as a truck entrance, Godley said.

It was Pass Christian Fire Chief Rich Marvil who submitted a letter to the board requesting an opening on Hayden because of safety requirements issued by the International Fire Code.

"Hayden Avenue is the quickest route to Wal-Mart if an emergency occurs," he said.

Marvil said someone had proposed that Highway 90 would be the quickest route; however, he disagreed.

If Hayden does not have an entrance to Wal-Mart, Marvil explained that fire trucks would have to drive down Holiday Drive, cross Highway 90 to get in the west-bound lane and then cross over the highway once again to enter into the store's parking lot.

Marvil said this would pose a safety issue and would add more time for firefighters to respond to an emergency.

"I have to consider the well-being of my firefighters, the tax payers and the patrons of Wal-Mart," he said.

Pass Christian Mayor Billy McDonald said the City Council will review all the options about the traffic flow situation before making a decision.

Wal-Mart is scheduled to open June 18.

Education Mike Ladner. "We could not hire a classsize reduction teacher or expand our gifted and talented programs at East Hancock Elementary because we had no classrooms available due to continued growth in student population."

Cheryl Ramseyer, principal of East Hancock Elementary School, said the expansion is more than welcome.

The school, which opened in October 1999, has a population capacity of 650. Currently, 633 students are enrolled for the 2002-2003 school year. Ramseyer said classrooms are overflowing in different grade levels for different reasons.

One major problem has been the growing population of first-grade classes. Ramseyer said class-size reduction has not been a possibility because their were no additional classrooms. Other grades and classes also presented their own problems.

"We have over 90 students in our gifted program," Ramseyer said. "They've been housed in a science lab and an art room. Now, these rooms will be available to the entire school."

The science lab and art room are not the only makeshift classrooms. The Texas Scottish Write Dyslexia Program, designed for small groups of students, has been held wherever room was available.

BUSINESS NEWS

The "Mississippi Miracle" continues to pay dividends

Mayors from four regional casino markets told of the success gaming has brought to their communities during a Wednesday seminar at the 10th Annual Southern Gaming Summit in Biloxi.

Eddie Farve - Bay St. Louis, Keith Hightower -Shreveport, A.J. Holloway Lorenzo Biloxi and Langford - Atlantic City all agreed that legalized gaming had been the turning point for improvement and that its success was far greater than any had imagined. Each of the mayors spoke of facing a multitude of local issues and problems which existed prior to the arrival of gaming; poverty, high unemployment, lack of funds for much needed infrastructure improvements, etc.

the entire fleet," Holloway added.

Langford gave overview of the rise and fall of the Atlantic City tourism industry. And its rebirth, thanks to gaming.

Some 5000 people are expected to attend the two day conference which concludes today. It features 18 diverse educational seminars and the largest gaming expo outside of Las Vagas, with over 200 exhibitors.

"Our slogan was "Spend the Day in the Bay" because, before gaming we didn't have a hotel, motel or Bed and Breakfast where you and your family could spend the night," Farve said of Bay St. Louis. "The Mississippi Miracle, there are still so many disbelievers. There are still so many who will never understand "It brought back a sense how and why Mississippi and gaming have worked," Farve added.

"Bay Saint Louis is the old police cars to replacing Mississippi Miracle. We are a small community, but our county was the first to legalize gambling on the Coast, much to the surprise of local Coast residents. Bay Saint Louis jumped out of the box to participate in a golden opportunity to jump-start a sluggish local economy with dim prospects of improvement," Farve explained.

"We have one casino, property taxes that have been reduced by 85% inexpensive utility rates, a thriving historic downtown with no commercial vacancies, a busy Highway 90 commercial district with state of the art technology development and praline kitchens still cooking every day, expanded hospital facilities, new and improved schools, a low unemployment rate, restored historic public buildings, new parks, playgrounds and a new public pier. We have these things because of the Mississippi Miracle in Bay

"Some days it seems that someone did wave a magic wand over Bay Saint Louis when I think of where we were in 1990 and where we are more than a decade later. Would the Bay do it all over again? It's a good bet that we would," Farve proclaimed.

"People-will be studying the Mississippi Miracle for many years to come. What a shame if they are only looking for a defeated community, they won't find one in Bay Saint Louis. Bay Saint Louis is out of the box and we aren't going back in," Farve concluded.

The mayor's session was part of the Diamond Decade Series, five seminars dedicated to the decade-long success of gaming in Mississippi.

NASA scientist's 'Flaming Sculptures' featured

DeNeice Guest, a recent transplant to Mississippi Gulf Coast, will be showing a new body of work at Quarter Moon Gallery in Bay St. Louis beginning May 10.

An opening reception will take place from 5-8 p.m. during the Second Saturday Artwalk. Pieces on display will include bug-eyed ceramics busts - some with flames shooting from their mouths - that DeNeice sometimes calls "Church

Ladies."

These unique sculptures are a "must see" element of this month's Second Saturday event.

Guest, a scientist for Lockheed Martin, has been working as an artist parttime for the past 20 years. She has focused on ceramics for the past 13 years, but she is an accomplished water-colorist as well. She also has experience with stained glass, fused glass, hotglass, paper-making, mosaic tile work and mural painting. The inspiration for this current collection is drawn from 13 years of watching people, and particularly their hats and dress, at Jazz Fest in New Orleans.

"The collection is a great example of humor on the fly," Guest says. "I start with an idea of what I'd like to see happen with the piece, then the 'Church Lady' takes over and dictates the final look."

The hand-built works range in size and form, utilizing an extensive variety of matte glazes. In addition to the Church Lady collection, she will also exhibit a large "school" of luminous ceramic fish wall art. The fish motif transitions with the Church Ladies, as some of the busts depict "fish people." Guest's flaming busts are very compelling and popular pieces. The flaming pieces are beautifully burnished pieces of terracofta, fashioned as women of ample proportions, with flames shooting out of their mouths. DeNeice's husband, Mark Guest, a local jazz musician, commissioned the first flaming piece.

"These pieces are amazing," said Mark. "The pieces are all nonfunctional, but DeNeice is working hard to develop a reputation as a "dysfunctional artist."

DeNeice notes, "Good art does not always match the furniture. Many of these pieces are perfect for gift items as well. They are humorous and have tremendous amounts of personality. This allows people to give something highly personal that will be appreciated for years.

The opening reception will take place at the Quarter Moon Gallery during the Second Saturday Artwalk in Bay St. Louis, from 5-8 p.m.

The artist will be on hand to discuss designs, techniques and sources of inspiration.

The gallery will also feature live music and refreshments. DeNeice is Quarter Moon Gallery's "featured artist" this month and her pieces will be on -display through June 13th.

Randolph featured at Serenity Gallery

Brenda Randolph is the featured artist at Serenity Gallery for the Second Saturday Artwalk from 5-8 pm On May 10th. Gallery owner, Jerry Dixon, always looks forward to showing Randolph's mixed media creations. Besides being the most popular artist ever to show at Serenity, he says her artworks vividly capture the imaginative Spirit in which they were born. One of his favorites for this show is a dazzling array of "organic shapes mosaic" on a gold leafed sheet of plexiglass - appropriately entitled Fanciful Flow.

Dixon is also intrigued by other people's fascination with Randolph's artworks Jim Ballard, musician and former Bay St. Louis resident, created music inspired by her works. Color therapists interpreted her art works for their clients and doctors, lawvers and hospitals have bought them for 10th until June 13th, 2003.

Now, take that hand, reach for the remote, and turn off the TV.

There. Feel better? I

NOW QUIT WORRYING ABOUT STUPID STUFF JUST BECAUSE WOLF BLITZER AND STONE PHILLIPS TOLD YOU TO!!!

Yes, SARS - or Severe Respiratory Acute Syndrome (which, oddly enough, is both severe AND acute) - is apparently a terrible disease. It is swiftmoving, easily-communicable and fatal in about 20 percent of the 300 or so cases that have been report-

In China. Granted, Chinese officials initially underreported the total number of people afflicted with the disease, but all told, at most maybe 1,000 people can be counted as SARS victims.

In China.

A country with a population in excess of one BIL-LION. That's like ... uhh ... well, if I were any good at math, I could tell you an actual percentage. But it's tiny. Like maybe a negative 10 percent, something in that range.

Now obviously, many cases have been diagnosed in Canada and even a few in the United States. It's terrible. I feel badly for the victims of the disease and their families.

And I'm sure officials at World Health Organization thought they were doing the right thing by issuing travel warnings for Beijing and Toronto. They probably saved some lives and helped to contain the spread of the disease.

But the 24-hour news cycle has blown this sucker waaayyyy out of proportion, to the extreme detriment of China's and Canada's economies. Before too long, that will also affect our economy.

Let's put this into a realistic perspective: According to Time Magazine, in the past year alone, approximately 36,000 people worldwide have died from the flu. Plain, boring old influenza.

You don't see anybody going spastic over that.

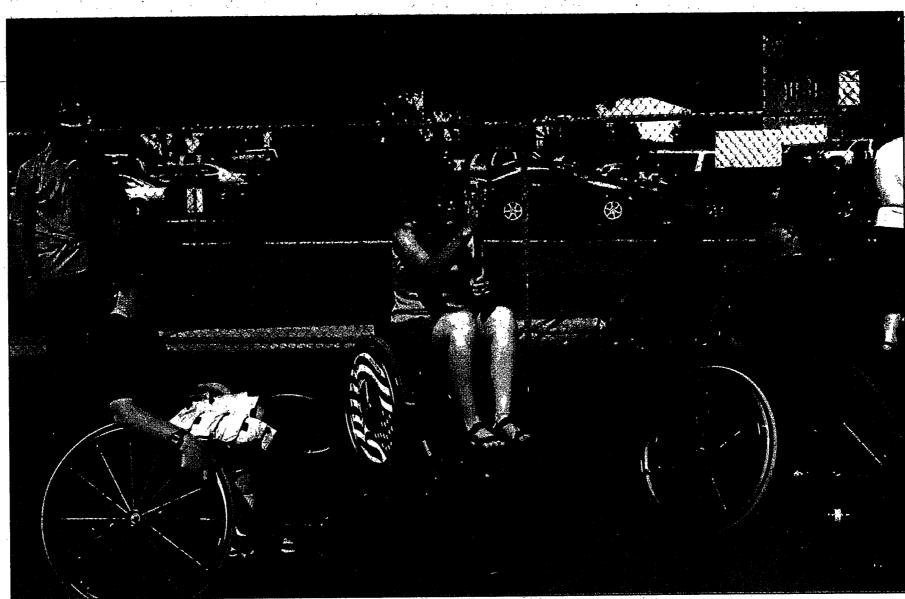

And since the time that SARS was first diagnosed and CNN and MSNBC turned it into the greatest plague to ever affect mankind, fewer people have died from it than have died from dengue fever.

I'll say that again. Dengue fever.

Do you even know what dengue fever is? I don't, although I know Delbert McClinton sang about a

Which is exactly why everybody and his third cousin is now terrified of SARS.

In the early days of Operation Iraqi Freedom. the 24-hour cable news channels needed an easilypackaged, panic-striking ongoing story so they could have something else to show every 15 minutes after another bomb plowed into Baghdad. SARS fit the bill perfectly. A rapidly-spreading disease with flu-like symptons and no known cause. Everybody could relate to it, everybody could fear it and the details weren't so gruesome as to make discussing it too uncomfortable.

So SARS Wars was born, but it was basically a sub-

Now that the war has Killed his Pregnant Wife." Recently, SARS was the cover story on Time, Newsweek and U.S. News & World Report; was a major story in virtually every national newspaper; and was featured in-depth every hour on the hour on CNN, Fox. C-NBC and MSNBC.

Headlines and soundbites like "12 more die from SARS" "SARS spreads to U.S." and "SARS is gonna get you" were everywhere. It's understandable, of Rampant fear means more people want to know what's going on RIGHT ratings and, in turn, mor ad revenue.

Every news medium has done it to some extent, and has for years. How often have you seen a "newsbreak" on a New Orleans channel, inviting you to tune in to the 6 o'clock report to "Find Out What Common Household Item Endanger May Health," or warning you that you absolutely must catch the special investigative report at 10 to find out "How to Stop Your Dog from Exploding."

Even The Sea Coast Echo has been accused of bolstering our coverage of the local news with "murder, mayhem and sensationalism."

I contend that isn't true there are probably a few people who will tell you there's absolutely nothing

"Dengue Woman," and the wound down, the whole NOW, which means tuning sensational about us - but expanded a hundred-fold to nels, which means higher weekly dose probably wouldn't kill you.

Watching it every hour on the hour, however, could at the very least get your blood pressure up. Mine goes through the roof every time I watch Fox News, which has two die-hard company mottos: "It's our opinion, so it must be true,' and "It's a democrat - kill

So heed my advice: Turn off the 24/7 news networks and relax a little bit. SARS probably won't get you unless you go to Beijing or Toronto, and if it does, panicking over it before hand won't help.

But be sure and pick up a copy of the Echo next week, when we tell you why your genitals may be in danger of falling off and what you can do to stop it.
